ATTORNEYS: APPLY TODAY TO JOIN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY'S MEDIATION VOLUNTEER PANEL

Applications from Qualified Attorneys Will Be Accepted on a Rolling Basis; Attorneys Without Prior Mediation Training Can Apply for the Court's Free November Mediation Training Program by September 23

To help litigants resolve their disputes quickly and efficiently, and in accordance with California Rules of Court, Rule 3.835 et seq., the Superior Court of Los Angeles County (Court) is currently accepting applications from qualified attorneys who are interested in serving as volunteers on the Court's Mediation Volunteer Panel (MVP) focused primarily on unlimited civil cases.

"The launch of the Court's Mediation Volunteer Panel represents this Court's effort to leveraging the expertise of the legal community to assist the Court in the timely resolution of civil cases," Presiding Judge Samantha P. Jessner said. "With the implementation of a robust alternative dispute resolution program, the Court is providing litigants with a no or low-cost tool to facilitate a mutually acceptable resolution early, saving the litigants the significant costs associated with litigating a case and going to trial. This is an exciting opportunity for all interested attorneys to dedicate themselves to helping the Court meet its mission of providing access to justice through the fair, timely and efficient resolution of all cases. I encourage all interested attorneys to apply today."

Attorneys who join the program will provide virtual mediation for civil cases referred by judicial officers in Independent Calendar courts countywide. Judicial officers will begin referring litigants to the program in October. The Court's Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) Office will assign cases to the volunteer mediators, who should be prepared to dedicate preparation time and the first three hours of the mediation session pro bono. Thereafter, if the parties wish to continue the mediation, mediators may charge the hourly rate listed in their profile. Mediator profiles will be featured on the Court's ADR webpage.
